Announcement

NAFA announced today that Barry Jordan has resigned his position with the company effective immediately.

In September 2009, Barry was relocated to Nova Scotia at his request to service directly NAFA's mink customers there, and also in anticipation of a lesser work load as he approached the company's normal retirement age of 65. Unfortunately, Barry was not satisfied with his new role within NAFA and has now decided to explore other avenues.

Barry worked for NAFA and its predecessor company, Hudson's Bay Fur Sales, for over 40 years and has made a significant contribution over this period to NAFA's success as North America's leading auction company. The NAFA Board, senior management and staff would like to acknowledge Barry's long term service and commitment to NAFA and wish him well.
